A training and resource center,
serving the urban church since 1984

Dear Ministry Leader,

Greetings from the Urban Mission Field of New York City! Founded in 1984, the New York School of Urban Ministry (NYSUM) hosts, trains, and deploys over 5,000 youth and adults each year by partnering with over 100 inner city pastors and churches.

In addition to providing practical urban classroom training, NYSUM provides accommodations and home-style meals for small and large groups at our 74,000 sq. ft. training campus. NYSUM's staff trains students from colleges, seminaries, Bible schools, youth groups, and church groups in "hands-on" cross cultural urban ministry.

NYSUM'S outreaches consist of but are not limited to Food Truck ministry, street meetings, soup kitchens, rescue missions, city shelters, rehab centers, late night homeless outreaches, holiday feeding programs and so much more.

Please review our Short Term Missions catalog and learn how you and your group can participate in the NYSUM Experience, reclaiming New York City one block at time!

Yours for compassionate leadership,

Rev. Peter & Darleen DeArruda
President

Why short-term missions in New York City?

- Massive Population: New York City has a population of approximately 10 million people, more than the populations of 39 U.S. States. It is roughly equivalent to the combined populations of Los Angeles, Chicago, and Houston.
- Ethnic diversity: NYC is considered the "Most International City in the World." Approximately 36% of New Yorkers are foreign born, and at least 200 languages are spoken here.
- Homelessness & Poverty: 14% of the U.S. homeless population resides in New York City. While the U.S. average is 13% living below the poverty line, 27.1% of the Bronx's population and 21.9% of Brooklyn's population live below the poverty line.
- Disaster Relief: As a result of the devastation caused by Hurricane Sandy, the need for helping needy and hurting New Yorkers has skyrocketed since late October 2012.
